

Climate Justice and Social Work Workshop

March 13, 2020
9am-11:30am

CSU Stanislaus, MSR 130
1 University Circle
Turlock, CA 95382

RSVP to Nama O'Donnell by March 6th
6262odonnell@gmail.com

(Light refreshments provided; Gift basket raffle to be done at end of workshop)

The National Association of Social Workers (NASW) has identified Environmental Justice as one of the five most important social justice issues that social workers should be focused on. In relation to “environment,” social workers have often only focused on a person in their immediate sociocultural environment. Through the years, the concept of environmental justice has struggled to change in order to encompass climate change as well. Although there are social workers who are attempting to promote climate justice as a part of environmental justice, there is still a large deficit in the amount of social workers that are engaged in this type of practice. This workshop aims to help lessen this deficit through education and collaboration between social work students, MSW faculty, and social work professionals.

Stanislaus State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please call (310-809-2058) in advance of your participation or visit. Providing at least [72 hours] advance notice will help to ensure availability